The average number of words used in a “commoner’s” vocabulary during Elizabethan times was less than 500 compared to 7500 today. William Shakespeare invented many words and is credited with contributing approx. 2000 words to the English vocabulary.

The Elizabethans took great delight with language. There were not many forms of entertainment so good conversation was essential.

Examples;

By trowht, thou dost make the millstone seem as a feather what widst thy lard— bloated football.

In sooth, thy dank cavemous tooth– hole consumes all truth and reason!

*Thy vile canker— blossome'd countenance
curdles milk and sours beer.*

Shakespeare (Extension) - Revision

Theme: Shakespeare - Dictation

Shakespeare's antagonists were often superstitious, melancholic, phlegmatic and full of rancour. Whilst the protagonists were oft malevolent, heinous, avaricious usurpers. The apothecary could treat apoplexy, and consumption but choler was best treated with carousing. Shakespeare's use of honorificabilitudinitatibus in Love's Labour's Lost is an example of hapax legomenon.

All of the words below are made up from bottom halves.

PERCHANCE	SCEPTICAL
APOTHECARY	KHENISH
ARCHAIC	SOLILOQUY
SAWYER	ZWAGGERED

The answers to the clues can be found in the list of syllables.
