Around the world in more than 80 days

By: Tegan Whitfield

Do you long to get away from the hustle and bustle of daily life? Do you want some time just to yourself? Well Jessie Allen did, but she went a lot further than most of us would be willing to go.

Tegan Whitfield: Hi Jessie. Welcome back to Australia. How does it feel to be home?

Jessie Allen: Hi Tegan. It's great. I can't describe how good it is to finally sleep in a bed that isn't moving!

TW: Well, after more than 8 months at sea, sailing alone through all sorts of weather conditions, I can understand that a good night's sleep is a luxury. But tell me, why, at 16 years of age, would you want to sail around the world all by yourself?

JA: I've always loved sailing. It's in my blood. Mum and Dad both represented Australia in sailing at different Olympics. And I spent the first five years of my life travelling around the coast of Australia on our family yacht. It's all I've ever known. To me – it's quite normal.

TW: But it's certainly not for everyone. Tell me, what did you miss most while you were away?

JA: That's easy, my dog Zoe. She's a black Labrador puppy. I got her for my 15th birthday, and we do everything together. But unfortunately 8 months at sea was just not a good idea for Zoe, so she stayed at home. I did get to chat with her over the webcam, so that was pretty cool.

TW: Now that you're back on dry land, what's your next plan?

JA: Back to school! I have to finish my final year of high school and then I hope to go to Uni and study engineering.

TW: Best wishes with your studies. After all you've been through I'm sure you'll breeze through. Thanks for your time.

JA: It's been a pleasure. Thanks for all your support.
