Fire Service Open Day

By: Alexander T. Waterman

Last Saturday, the rural fire service held an open day at its Illawong station.

Everyone from the local community and beyond was invited. They had valuable equipment demonstrations and fire prevention talks for the adults; and balloons and cute stick on tattoos for the kids.

In the afternoon, the local brigade put on an impressive fire safety display with hoses and buckets. “It was great!” said Sam aged 4. “I came last year too. But this time the show was better.”

At the end of the day, the rural fire service commissioner, Captain Mark Itout, announced that the Illawong station would be receiving a much needed financial boost to allow it to update its old equipment. This decision was greeted with much excitement.

The rural fire service is still in need of volunteers for the upcoming fire season. If you are interested, please contact your local rural fire service office or go to their website: www.rfsoffice.org.au
