

Example Text: Travel Guide

Touring Taiwan

Location

Taiwan is a small island in East Asia and is controlled by China.

Getting There

Taiwan has two international airports at Taoyuan and Kaohsiung. Both Singapore Airlines and Thai Airways have direct flights to get you to Taiwan, departing from Sydney.

Weather

Taiwan has a tropical climate. You should avoid travelling there during the monsoonal (rainy) season from January – March/April. During June to September it is very hot and humid. The best time to visit is from October to December with generally sunny conditions and temperatures in the mid 20s. Typhoons are common – particularly in the monsoonal season.

Festivals

You are sure to enjoy the many cultural and religious Taiwanese festivals such as:

- Chinese New Year – celebrated in the first lunar month
- Lantern Festival – held between January to March
- Lugang Dragon Boat Festival – May
- Kunshen Wangye's Salt for Peace Festival – November

Tours

- gourmet tours to sample the best in local and multicultural cuisine
- cultural tours to religious and historical areas
- visit the hot mountain springs to relax and rejuvenate

Accommodation

A wide variety of hotel accommodation is available. From four star international hotels to budget priced rooms. There is something to suit every need.

See also: eng.taiwan.net.tw www.virtualtourist.com

